
Introduction

Language Extensions for code editors are a crucial tool in writing code quickly and without errors. In this project I create a Syntax Highlighter and Language Server for the logical and declarative programming language Logical English. I will give the Language Server the feature to auto-generate “boilerplate” template code from rules. I also aim to allow the Language Server to identify type mismatch errors that occur between rules and templates.